This cheque was paid in in February but not actually credited to the account until March. It would therefore have been shown as a Bank receipt in the February cash and bank book and appeared in the bank reconciliation for February. It does not appear in the March cash and bank book and now that it has been credited to the account, it does not appear in the March bank reconciliation.

This cheque payment was made in February and therefore appeared in the February Cash and bank book. It was not however debited from the bank in the February so would have appeared in the February bank reconciliation. This payment does not appear in the March cash and bank book and now that it has been debited, it does not appear in the March bank reconciliation either.
